

GIRL SOLDIERS FIND NEED OF BLANKETS

Training Suggests Possible
Service in Defense of Northern Alaska.

Training assistants for the next dash to the North Pole and for the defense of northern Alaska in the winter is the way the members of the second class at the National Service School's Cheyenne Chase training camp regard its experience of last night.

Tuesday night was cold for campers who are not used to camping. But last night was even colder, and the young women who have just laid their service of heart and hand on the altar of their country found the altar rather chilly, even when they wrapped themselves up in heavy army blankets.

The value of the setting-up exercises was not realized by the members of the class which was graduated from the school Tuesday as it has been for the past two mornings by the members of the new class. The getting up in the cold, grey dawn was more literal to the members of the new class today than it ever has been before.

Today the principal feature of the camp work will be the address of Congressman T. W. Miller, of Delaware, on the Plattsburg "graduate," and will tell the service school corps this afternoon of this experience. Fred H. Howard Gore will also speak at the afternoon meeting in the assembly tent.

Frederic H. Howard Gore will also speak at the afternoon meeting in the assembly tent. Yesterday afternoon in the camp assembly tent bristled with facts and figures regarding the state of preparedness of the United States army and the coast defense. During the course of his address Mr. Hildekoper said that the statement that no nation could land troops in the United States was "a deliberate lie." Germany could land 100,000 men on the Atlantic coast in thirty days, he declared, and Japan could place 500,000 men on the Pacific coast in forty-one days.

"The national guard," said Mr. Hildekoper, "is not national and it doesn't guarantee Congress is about to subsidize it and we shall see for the first time real militarism in our national life."

Tomorrow Dr. Harvey W. Wiley will deliver a lecture on food values and Dr. Douglas Putnam Birnie will talk on good citizenship in the assembly tent at 3:30. A special invitation has been extended to the public to attend these lectures.

May 27th Will Be Thrift Club Day

Big Savings Plan of Continental Trust Company
Starts on That Date—More Than Two Hundred Merchants Take Part—Fine Opportunity to Build Bank Balance Without Effort.

Saturday, May 27th, has been set as the day on which enrollment starts in the Continental Thrift Club, the tremendous new savings movement being put into effect by the Continental Trust Company, 1406 G St. N. W., with the co-operation of more than 200 of Washington's best merchants.

Yesterday, a partial list of the Thrift Club members was for the first time made public. Two hundred and fifteen good stores are now in the new cash discount system which promises to put in bank four millions of dollars to the credit of the children of Washington.

This wonderful new plan of savings seems almost too good to be true. It is a system by which you or your child may build a bank account almost without effort, a system by which every dollar you spend adds to the money you have in bank. The plan includes the giving away by this bank of ten thousand dollars of its own money to the children of Washington for the purpose of interesting them in this plan of thrift and savings.

The Continental Trust Company which is back of this new system is one of the most conservative financial institutions in Washington. It has a paid up capital of one million dollars, a surplus of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and total resources of nearly four millions of dollars.

The merchants who are co-operating in the movement include some of the largest stores in their particular lines in Washington. These stores include many groceries. More than twenty good drug stores, department stores, shoe stores, a laundry, millinery stores, bakeries, plumbers, cigar and tobacco stores, tea and coffee stores, furriers, cafes, large furniture stores, dairies, ice companies, and in fact, every line for which money is expended is represented in this splendid system.

You will be interested in this Thrift Club plan. It means much to your family. If you have a child it is almost vital to its future prosperity. A group of clean good business women are going into the Washington homes explaining this system. They have nothing to sell, nothing for you to sign. They know how to tell the plan interestingly and they have the faculty of being brief. If one of the Continental women comes to your door, do not fail to give her a hearing. The time you spend with her will be time well spent.
